MILK INSPECTOR HAS STARKLOFF IN STEW

Request of Health Board for Charges Against Helwig Refused by Commissioner.

The contemplated preferment of charges against Milk Inspector Helwig was the cause of a heated debate yesterday afternoon, after the meeting of the Board of Health, between Health Commissioner Starkloff and Doctors Merrell and Chapman, the medical members of the board. Doctor Starkloff said that he would not submit specifications, as he does not care to make himself liable for damages, and he is not obliged to obey the Board of Health, which is merely an advisory body. "I am willing to join with the other members of the board in preferring charges," said the Health Commissioner, "but I am not willing to enter charges on my own account. I told the Mayor that I would submit charges if I were assured that the Milk Inspector would be discharged.

"I conferred with the Mayor about the case against the Milk Inspector, and told him how difficult it would be to make the charges stick. The trouble is that the law is defective, and does not give opportunity for establishing specifications that would be sufficient to cause the officials' discharge. I agree with the board that he should be discharged but I will not bring charges on my own responsibility.

"The board has no authority to give orders to the Health Commissioner. However. shall join with other members of the board in bringing charges, if that will be agreeable to the members." Doctors Merrell and Chapman said the Milk Inspector should not be retained longer, and insisted that charges should be preferred.

Doctor Chapman was not greatly pleased with an opinion by City Counselor Bates relative to the powers and duties of the Assistant Health Commissioner. Doctor Chapman questioned the privilege of Assistant Health Commissioner Francis to preside over the board, and asked for an opinion from Mr. Bates. The City Counselor quoted the ordinance and said the Assistant Health Commissioner is empowered to perform all the duties and exercise all the prerogatives of the Health Commissioner during the latter's illness or absence.

MISTAKEN FOR BANK ROBBER Newsboy Stopped a Messenger on His Way to Clearing-House.

Joseph Bailey, messenger for the National Bank of Commerce, on his way to the St. Louis Clearing-House yesterday morning with a grip full of non-negotiable paper. was held up by a crowd of newsboys at was held up by a crowd of newsboys at Broadway and Olive street, under the apprehension that he was attempting to escape with the bank's valuables.

Balley came out of the alley door of the bank with his cap pulled down over his eyes. He was late, and only had a few minutes to reach the Clearing-house before it closed. He started down the alley on a run. The alley was choked with newsboys.

"Stop thief," they cried and darted after boys.

"Stop thief," they cried and darted after the messenger with his valise, supposed to contain rolls of bills taken from the bank. When Balley's progress was checked he stopped and pulled out a handkerchief and wiped his perspiring face.

"Look out for his gun," cried someone in the crowd, mistaking his action. Bailey quickly explained and proceeded on his way.
